In its first 150 years, the State of South Australia produced, or was home to, many people who either made significant contributions to the State's lifestyle or gained national and international recognition for their work.

In 1986, the State's sesquicentenary year, the South Australia Jubilee 150 Board considered it appropriate for these outstanding people to be permanently commemorated in the form of the Jubilee 150 Commemorative Walk - a series of bronze plaques to be set in the paving slabs of the footpath on the northern side of North Terrace between King William Street and Frome Road.

The Jubilee Walk was officially opened on 21 December 1986.

The people commemorated on Jubilee Walk were selected by a small panel of eminent South Australians. The panel arrived at a broad representation of names covering explorers, pioneers, scientists, writers, performers, social workers, sporting personalities, politicians, government officials and professional people.

The Jubilee 150 Commemorative Walk was sponsored by the Hickinbotham Group of Companies, with financial contributions also provided by families, friends and associated organizations.

The City of Adelaide contributed the planning and implementation.
